

Otis, Midnight and the Cornstalk By Lorin Morgan-Richards

Otis Goodbye went outside to take his noun for a walk.

To his surprise he found his horse Verb - Present ends in ING a cornstalk.

The corn looked Adjective and Adjective, not what you'd normally see.

But quite gross, alarming, and I say should not be!

The neighborhood Noun - Plural watched rolling in laughter.

Seeing his horse Adverb pose such a disaster.

Otis Verb - Past Tense his head in shame, and walked backwards Verb - Past Tense his fame.

The Adverb crowd he and his horse attracted,

would not easily be retracted

But thankfully Proper Noun diverted their stare

when she too began Verb - Present ends in ING along with the mare.
